

MGA FALL POLICY FORUM

KEYNOTE

Valerie Parker Callahan, Director of Planning and Development at Greater Lynn Senior Services, shepherds cross continuum collaborations around consumer engagement in care transition, such as the Commonwealth's Navigating Across Care Settings project and the Safe Passages initiative on the North Shore. Having held leadership roles in private and public sectors with small, non-profit organizations for more than a decade, she brings a repertoire of strong management skills and creative strategies for team-building and superior program results to projects she oversees in mobility management, regional quality, assurance, and the delivery of sustained health care supports. Valerie holds degrees from Fordham University and Boston University.

RESPONDENTS

Craig Schneider is Director of Healthcare Policy with the Massachusetts Health Data Consortium. With expertise in electronic health record deployment, care transitions, end-of-life care, and payment reform, he oversees forums, educational events, data products, and collaborative projects. Craig holds degrees from Boston University and Brandeis Heller School

Kenneth Peterson is a family nurse practitioner and primary care provider in the Dept. of Family Medicine and Community Health at the Plumley Village Health Services Clinic, where he delivers health care to socially disadvantaged patients of all ages. He teaches medical and nursing students in UMass programs, and holds degrees from UMass Amherst and Brandeis Heller School.

Robert Schreiber, CMO and physician-in-chief for Hebrew SeniorLife, sustains strategic vision for the Dept. of Medicine in clinical care, academic teaching, and applied research. He has served as Chairman of Geriatrics at Lahey Clinic, is board certified in internal medicine and geriatrics, and an instructor in medicine at Harvard Medical School. He holds degrees from Dartmouth and Hahnemann Medical College.
